Undercooked

Look and feel:

We want the website to look modern and fresh, simple and easy to read and understand.

Resources:

Color palette:

This is the color palette that we are using for our website.

Background color is used for the back side of the pages. Primary is used on important parts like things the user has to pay attention to. Accent color is used for elements like buttons that users can interact with. Secondary is used for other fields and spaces that need to be highlighted from the surroundings.

Background #C2C1EF	Primary #6664CA	Accent color #FFB23B	Secondary #F2F2FF
On Background #36365C	On Primary #FFFFFF	On accent #3A277C	On Secondary #36365C

Each color field has a corresponding "on it color". This allows us to achieve maximum readability of the contents.

Moreover, these colors can be mixed and matched to create a more nuanced look based on the context.

Fonts:

We want to use Futura font family for our website. Condensed variant for content text, Bold in all caps for bigger elements.

Guidelines:

We want to use hard, unrounded edges for all the elements, which should go well with Futura typeface.

Elements adjacent to the edges should have no gaps with them and be flush with the border of the web page. Generally elements should be placed next to one another without spacing in between them if possible.

Text should be set to _ in body text.

Layout of the main page:

Here you can find the layout of our main page presented in approximation without regard for colors and fonts. Here we focused on relative placement of elements and their purpose. We used this to have a goal for arranging elements.

Top bar:

A major part of the main page is the top bar that contains essential links to other parts of the website as well as the homepage itself. The sections it references are dishes(food data), reviews(text based information left by users) and this week(recent additions from this week).

Search bar:

Here the user can search the database for a specific element.

Login query:

The user can either login or signup to our website.

Disclaimer:
